SIMONA shows social responsibility

SIMONA AG has donated 25,000 euros for those affected by the tsunami in South Asia. The donation will go to the Human Help Network and Förderverein Lützelsohn, who have been supporting the aid organisations set up by the Salesians of Don Bosco in India, Sri Lanka und Thailand.

Drawing on many years of experience from its relief work in areas affected by natural disasters, this partner has an in-depth understanding of the people and structures in this region. In addition to providing immediate aid for the reconstruction of houses, schools and sanitary facilities, the relief organisation accords great importance to the provision of professional psychological help for trauma victims in the region.

Thus, the organisation is able to ensure that the donation and the relief efforts financed with the help of these funds will be used directly for the benefit of those affected by the tsunami disaster.
